

19 November

-

-
- An aerial photograph of a coastal region. A red square highlights a specific area of land, likely the subject of the study. The area is characterized by a grid-like street pattern and is situated between a body of water (blue) and a larger landmass (green/brown). The highlighted area appears to be a residential or commercial development.